Introduction

A verb tells something about what is happening or the action taken. Associated with a verb is the tense of the verb. Norwegian verbs can use one of four tenses: presens, preteritum, futurum and perfektum.

Infinitiv

But before we can start learning about verbs with tenses let us look at the infinitiv form of the verb. The infinitiv form is the dictionary form of the verb. So whenever you read verbs in a dictionary you will find them in this form. Below are some verbs in their infinitive form.

Norwegian	English
å lese	to read
å reise	to travel
å kjøpe	to shop
å lage	to make
å sparke	to kick
å gjøre	to do
å gå	to go
å feire	to celebrate

Presens (Present Tense)

A Norwegian verb in the presens could indicate something that:

- 1) is happening now.
- 2) which happens often.
- 3) which happens always.

Note that the presens form is created by adding an r to the infinitiv as below.

Infinitiv	Presense	Example	English
å lese	leser	Han leser nå.	He reads now.
å reise	reiser	Hun reiser i dag.	She travels today.
å kjøpe	kjøper	Jeg kjøper is akkurat nå.	I buy ice cream just now.
å lage	lager	Han lager middag nå.	He makes dinner now.
å sparke	sparker	De sparker fotball nå.	They kick football now.
å gjøre	gjør	Hun gjør leksene sine nå.	She does her lessons now.
å gå	går	Vi går på ski i dag.	We go to ski today.
å feire	feirer	De feirer i Italia nå.	They celebrate in Italy now.

Preteritum (Past Tense)

A Norwegian verb in the preteritum indicates something that has already happened.

Note that the preteritum form is created by adding a te to the infinitiv as below. Also note that it is necessary to specify the time when using preteritum (e.g. yesterday, one week ago, etc).

Infinitiv	Preteritum	Example	English
å lese	leste	Han leste i går.	He read yesterday.
å reise	reiste	Hun reiste i går.	She traveled yesterday.
å kjøpe	kjøpte	Jeg kjøpte is i går.	I bought ice cream yesterday.
å lage	laget	Han laget middag i går også.	He made dinner yesterday also.
å sparke	sparket	De sparket fotball i går også.	They kicked football yesterday also.
å gjøre	gjorde	Hun gjorde leksene sine før hun gikk.	She did her lessons before she went.
å gå	gikk	Vi gikk på ski før en uke siden.	We went to ski a week ago.

As you can see above, there are a few exceptions to the “rule” of adding te to the infinitiv.

Futurum (Future Tense)

A Norwegian verb in the futurum indicates something that will happen in the future.

Note that the futurum form is created by adding a skal before the infinitiv as below.

Infinitiv	Futurum	Example	English
å lese	skal lese	Han skal lese i morgen.	He shall read tomorrow.
å reise	skal reise	Hun skal reise om en time.	She shall travel in an hour.
å kjøpe	skal kjøpe	Jeg skal kjøpe is.	I shall buy icecream.
å lage	skal lage	Han skal lage middag.	He shall prepare dinner.
å sparke	skal sparke	De skal sparke fotball.	They shall kick football.
å gjøre	skal gjøre	Hun skal gjøre leksene sine.	She shall do her lessons.
å gå	skal gå	Vi skal gå på ski.	We shall go for skiing.

Perfektum (Past Tense)

A Norwegian verb in the perfektum indicates something that has happened in the past. But it is different from the preteritum that also indicates past tense. It is different because we use perfektum when we don't tell when the action occurred.

Note that the perfektum form is created by adding a har before the infinitiv and a t at the end as below.

Infinitiv	Perfektum	Example	English
å lese	har lest	Han har lest.	He has read .
å reise	har reist	Hun har reist.	She has travelled .
å kjøpe	har kjøpt	Jeg har kjøpt is.	I have bought .
å lage	har laget	Han har laget middag.	He has prepared dinner.
å sparke	har sparket	De har sparket fotball.	They have kicked football.
å gjøre	har gjort	Hun har gjort leksene sine.	She has done her lessons.
å gå	har gått	Vi har gått på ski.	We have gone for skiing.

More About Preteritum and Perfektum

Let us continue learning about some Norwegian verbs that change vowels in the preteritum and perfektum forms.

Infinitiv	Presens	Preteritum	Perfektum
å fortelle (to tell)	forteller	fortalte	har fortalt
å bringe (to bring)	bringer	brakte	har brakt
å følge (to follow)	følger	fulgte	har fulgt
å gjøre (to do)	gjør	gjorde	har gjort
å legge (to lay)	legger	la	har lagt
å rekke (to reach)	rekker	rakte	har rakt
å selge (to sell)	selger	solgte	har solgt
å sette (to set)	setter	satte	har satt
å smøre (to smear)	smører	smurte	har smurt
å velge (to choose)	velger	valgte	har valgt
å spørre (to ask)	spør	spurte	har spurt

Å være

One of the most common verbs that is used in Norwegian is the verb å være (to be).

Infinitiv	Presens	Preteritum	Perfektum
å være	er	var	har vært

Here are a few examples.

Norwegian	English
Jeg liker å være inne i regnvær.	I like to be inside in rainy weather.
Jeg er hjemme nå.	I am home now.
Jeg var på skolen i går.	I was at school yesterday.
Jeg har vært i butikken.	I have been to the shop.
Jeg skal være hjemme i morgen.	I shall be home tomorrow.

Helping Verbs

Helping verbs are often used when you want to use the future tense of the verb(futurum). Also note that helping verbs cannot be used on their own. They are used to help the main verb.

The helping verbs are as mentioned below:

Infinitive	Presens	Preteritum
å burde	bør (should)	burde
å kunne	kan (can)	kunne
å måtte	må (must)	måtte
å skulle	skal (shall)	skulle
å ville	vil (will)	ville

When we use the helping verb, we use the infinitive form of the main verb without the infinitive marker å.

e.g. Jeg kan (å) snakke litt norsk nå.

Here are a few examples to make things clear.

Norwegian	English
Kan jeg få en kopp te?	Can I get a cup of tea?
Jeg kan snakke litt norsk nå.	I can speak a little Norwegian now.
Jeg kan komme på skolen på mandag.	I can come to school on Monday.
Jeg kan ikke komme på tirsdag.	I can not come on Tuesday.

Learn About Verbs in Norwegian

Vil du ha kaffe eller te?	Will you have coffee or tea?
Vil du ha en blyant?	Will you have a pencil?
Jeg vil gjerne lære norsk.	I would like to learn Norwegian.
Vil du lære norsk?	Will you learn Norwegian.
Jeg skal gå på norskkurs i morgen.	I shall go to Norwegian course tomorrow.
Skal du gjøre lekser?	Shall you do lessons?

Du må lære norsk!	You must learn Norwegian!
Bør du spise dette?	Should you eat this?

Exception for Helping Verbs

Earlier we learnt that helping verbs cannot be used on their own, but there is an exception to this rule as shown below. See how the verb has been omitted in the sentences below. This is completely correct grammar in Norwegian with certain sentences.

Norwegian	English
Jeg skal på norskkurs i morgen.	I shall (go) to Norwegian course tomorrow.
Hun skal hjem nå	She shall (go) home now.
Kan du norsk?	Can you (speak) Norwegian?
